Phonics Update

During the summer of 2022, the PTO graciously sent a team of five teachers to a training at the Bodine School.

The Orton-Gillingham approach is research based and one of the most comprehensive, best ways to teach the fundamentals of the English language.

This method is multi-sensory, meaning students are taught to see, hear, and feel each element of the language. Students are required to see it and say it, then say it and write it.

We have started with the most basic part of the language, the letter sounds, and we will build from there.

Students will be explicitly taught letter combinations, correct letter pronunciation, how to divide words into syllables, and rules associated with syllable types. Moreover, while learning the spelling rules, plural rules, and doubling rules, students will be able to read, spell words, and break down words much easier.
